PREPARATION/COOKING

- It is important to properly handle all cut-up chicken to avoid spoilage or food poisoning.
- To thaw frozen chicken in the refrigerator place chicken on a plate or in a bowl on the lowest shelf to catch any dripping or juice.
- In the microwave: Use defrost or medium-low setting; microwave 2 minutes; let stand 2 minutes. Repeat as needed. Turn chicken and separate parts as it thaws. Be sure chicken is covered to reduce splattering. Cook right away after thawing.
- DO NOT thaw chicken on countertops or at room temperature.

USES AND TIPS

- Chicken may be baked or broiled. Frying is not suggested since it adds fat and calories. Cooked chicken can be used in many different ways such as in sandwiches, soups, salads, casseroles, and a variety of ethnic dishes.
